

Family
Note

Think of your home as a rich source of time-telling devices. Children can learn a lot by setting alarm clocks, as well as watching microwave oven countdowns and digital clock displays. All these experiences can provide valuable lessons for developing a sense of time.

Use a calendar to keep track of time and to mark special days.

It's easy to forget the date library books are due. Keep track! Check the due date. Mark it on the calendar.
